Button 15/11 is movable in a first direction and is normally biased in the first position by spring 18. Locking pin member 3-10 engages the button and is movable in a second direction perpendicular to the button from a third position to a fourth position when the button is moved from the first to second position. A second spring 19 biases the locking pin to be in the normally third position. The door A provides the housing.

5. Claims 3-6 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
